Verbal Description:

Figurine Fragment - broken - originally part of dolphins so wonderfully illustrated in the right drawing. It is thought that the La Sierrans were very into water mammals - so that reason we have many of these fragments. We have taken the liberty of what the original would have looked like. A generally friendly and unassuming creature, the dolphin proved to be a perfect representation of the Non-Maya residing at La Sierra. As a land mammal would be, the dolphin symbolizes the hopes & aspirations of the site classic La Sierrans contacted concerning the more complex society of their neighbors to the north.

Ships horns of very point

Possibly part of a foot or a flipper this fragment includes a rounded area and a curved, flat-backed flange. Chiton by core. The basal area is very flat.
